

Dr. Li-Ling Yang

is an Associate Professor of Science Education at Roger Williams University. She received her Ph.D. from Indiana University, Bloomington. Her research interests include elementary science curriculum, professional development for teachers, application of visual data in science classrooms, conceptual change, and environmental education.